Investment and Participation in an Energy Transition Fund

-Contributing to a Sustainable Future through Global Energy Infrastructure Investment-

Mizuho Leasing Company, Limited (President and CEO: Akira Nakamura, hereinafter referred to as "Mizuho Leasing") has invested in an energy transition fund (EIG Energy Transition Fund II, S.C.Sp., hereinafter referred to as "ETF II") for which EIG Management Company, LLC (hereinafter referred to as "EIG") acts as portfolio manager.

ETF II targets investments in companies and projects that support the global energy transition, such as renewable power generation, energy storage (including battery), the integration of renewable power technologies into the electric power system, modernization of the electric grid, energy efficiency, electric vehicle infrastructure, and the decarbonization of the energy system, including carbon capture, primarily in Europe and North America. ETF II aims to create long-term financial growth for investors by investing in energy transition assets that seek to mitigate climate change. EIG has over 40 years of experience investing in energy and energy-related infrastructure and has been investing in energy transition assets since 1990.

Mizuho Leasing is strengthening its commitment to investing in infrastructure assets as a pillar of its medium - to long-term growth strategy. Among these, renewable energy, battery storage systems, and other energy transition-related businesses have been identified as key areas for advancing a sustainable society.

Through its investment in ETF II, Mizuho Leasing will leverage EIG's expertise and global network to further expand its presence in the energy transition sector and contribute to the realization of a sustainable future.
